

AICS Introduces Outcome Based Cleaning™

May 1, 2020

AICS, the cleaning industry's preeminent custodial and facilities consultant, has released Outcome Based Cleaning™ (OBC™), a blueprint for cost-effectively delivering cleaner, safer, and healthier workplaces in the evolving post-pandemic world.

According to AICS founder, David Frank “As the economy reopens, employees, occupants, visitors, students, and guests are demanding assurances that the buildings they enter are cleaner, safer, and healthier, but there will always be cost considerations. Business leaders have repeatedly told us that they are wrestling to restructure their organizations to meet the heightened demand for cleaning in an economically feasible way.”

Outcome Based Cleaning™ (OBC™) is a road map for facility managers, distributors, service providers, and in-house cleaning departments to successfully navigate the reopening process, and safely welcome employees, customers and visitors back to their offices and places of business while sustainably maintaining safer, healthier buildings at the right price.

OBC™ integrates industry standards, workloading, regulatory compliance, safety requirements, healthy workplace strategies, economics, and best practices into a unified approach.

This is a time for action. OBC™ is actionable, pragmatic, and usable. It includes a streamlined implementation process, the Touch Point™ Cleaning System, and ongoing support that can be customized for each organization.

To learn more about Outcome Based Cleaning™, visit <http://www.aics.com/OBC>

About AICS

The American Institute for Cleaning Sciences (AICS) provides cleaning consultant services to property managers, cleaning firms, manufacturers and distributors. AICS is the cleaning industry's preeminent custodial and facilities consultant. For more information about AICS, visit <http://www.aics.com>

